

Did You Know
By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT the Circleville Straight-Out Club, an organization designed to promote independent thinking in political matters, was started in this city in September, 1841. George Fickard was the first president. Other officers were: Mahlon Groce, vice-president, and N. W. Doddridge, secretary. The club had its first meeting Sept. 6, 1841, when the organization was completed. The following excerpts are taken from a resolution passed at the first meeting:

"The inculcation of sound political principles and the dissemination of a general knowledge of the principles upon which are based our government and the social system under which we live, are necessary for the preservation and perpetuation of that liberty which our fathers purchased with toil and their blood, and left us a legacy."

"As no more efficient nor interesting means can be restored to in the furtherance of this subject, we shall assemble ourselves together at frequent intervals to interchange views, feelings, known truths and facts in relation to the past and present condition of the country."

Another organization, the Circleville Tippecanoe Club, was formed at the same time and had weekly meetings in Kinnear's Hall over the hardware store on W. Main-st. This club supported the Whig principles in the campaign of William Henry Harrison in 1840, "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too." Meetings of the Tippecanoe club were always concluded with the serving of hard cider.

THAT the removal of the octagonal court house from the center of the circle at Main and Court-sts was completed in May, 1841. Although looked upon today as a landmark well worth preserving, newspapers of the time commended the removal of the first court building. The Herald of the time had this to say:

"Those public-spirited and enterprising individuals, Messrs. Innovation, Improvement and Reform, by and with the advice and consent of the county authorities and several other gentlemen, are hard at work tearing away the old octagonal court house at this place—a fact which we apprehend no person in the habit of frequenting Circleville, will be likely to find fault. Court is being held in the Farmers' Exchange block until the new court house is erected."

That the first corn planter in Pickaway-co was brought here in January, 1842, by Calvin Olds of Montpelier, Vt. He was a nephew of Dr. Edson B. Olds of this city. The former was the inventor of a double corn planter which was widely used at the time. The machine was rather inexpensive and a number were sold to Pickaway-co farmers.

That a movement was begun in Circleville in 1842 to make Sunday "a more sacred day." Complaint was made in newspapers that the running of boats and "prosecution of labor on other water courses and railroads were unnecessary violations of the traditional belief that the observance of the Sabbath was a Divine Christian institution." An organization was perfected to induce merchants and manufacturers of Circleville to halt transportation of merchandise into the city on Sunday.

REPORT OFFER TO ITALIANS IN PEACE EFFORT

Military Guardianship Over Ethiopia Price Offered By League

DeValera May Be Elected as Chairman

PETORIA, South Africa, Sept. 7.—Strict observance by Italy and Ethiopia of league of nations regulations to prevent hostilities was urged by the Union of South Africa in a formal bulletin today.

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—The newly-formed committee of five dealing with the Italo-Ethiopian crisis today drafted similar letters to both nations, urging them to remain calm while the committee deliberates in search of a peaceful solution of the dispute.

Salvador De Nadariga of Spain, who presided at the committee meeting, said the morning was taken up with expositions of the situation by Premier Pierre Laval of France and Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs, for the benefit of the Spanish, Polish and Turkish members.

The new-comers will document themselves further over the weekend in preparation for another meeting of the committee Monday afternoon.

When the committee meeting broke up, Laval departed hurriedly, stating he was going to Paris. His purpose in making the trip ostensibly is to acquaint President Lebrun of France with the progress of the negotiations.

Commenting on reports published in the United States that France planned to ask the league to grant Italy a flat "military guardianship" over Ethiopia as the price of peace, a French spokesman said:

"It is useless formally to deny such a story."

The spokesman pointed out that Laval's speech to the council suggested no military guardianship, and that Eden had stated was opposed to a limitation of Ethiopian sovereignty as such a guardianship would imply.

Monday to Be Busy Day As City Schools Resume

School rooms idle since last June will spring to a new life in Circleville Monday.

Ruddy faced girls and boys, reflecting the joys of varied vacations and "swimming hole" sessions, added to the bright colored dresses of the girls will throw a new light in the lifeless rooms.

New and old classmates will meet. New teachers will be introduced. Books must be bought, and in general Monday will prove a busy day for Circleville youth.

Local Educators Hit "Fact Teaching" of Social Sciences; Plan New Deal Here

Aim of New Program Is To Teach Students to Think Intelligently.

By PAT J. KIRWIN

I WISH I were going back to Circleville high school this fall because the boys and girls in the social science classes down there are in for a "new deal."

No longer are they going to be required to digest a lot of facts, facts, facts, such as: the names of the mountains in Persia, the locale and importance of manhaden fish, the leading events in Garfield's administration, etc. . . .

Instead, they're going to be allowed to think for themselves and express their own opinions without fear of a frown from the teacher; in short, while the teacher remains in the background, they'll be allowed to develop their own philosophy about life as it is effected by a hundred different political, economic and social problems.

Include Many Subjects

The social sciences, you know, include such subjects as: history, political science, social civics, geography, etc. . . .

The "new deal" is based, in part, on a thesis prepared at Ohio State university this summer by Superintendent Frank Fischer and Robert E. Jewett, new social science teacher.

This thesis contends that the major objectives of the social sciences, as taught in the Circleville public schools, shall not be to indoctrinate the teacher's ideas into student minds, but rather to help develop in the heart of each pupil his own individual philosophy and true democracy by having him continually reconstruct his present views on both minor and basic issues.

This shall be done, say Educators Fischer and Jewett, "through teaching the difference between emotional or wishful thinking on the one hand, and INTELLIGENT thinking on the other."

And therein lies the basic philosophy of this "new deal." Educators are fairly well agreed that the "fact teaching" of social sciences in the past has been pretty much of a failure.

For instance, modern educators agree that the local teachers that such foolish positions as the following can have no probable functioning in a pupil's life:

What is the leading state in the production of bauxite?

How do you spell Illyricum?

What is Iraq?

Where is Simpon Pass?

Name the leading battles of the Civil War.

The above examples of facts, NOT to be taught under the arrangement which Fischer and Jewett suggest in their thesis, have been taken from actual classroom situations in Circleville schools.

Taught How to Think

Ever since he came into the public school picture here in the fall of 1933, Frank Fischer has been a leading exponent of the educational theory that a student should be taught how to think intelligently and not have his thinking done for him.

FLORIDA CREMATES VETERANS' BODIES

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 7.—Funeral fires sent columns of thick smoke rising into the sunlit skies today as Florida consigned the pitiful victims of one of its greatest hurricane disasters to the flames of cremation to stave off the imminent threat of pestilence.

A force of 500 FERA workers, under orders of Gov. Dave Sholtz, began the grim task of disposing of the bodies of scores of the storm's victims in a central funeral pyre on Matecumbe key at dawn.

Other funeral fires were lighted elsewhere in the devastated area where it was found impossible to remove the bodies from twisted wreckage and tangled tropical growth where they were flung by the force of Monday night's terrific winds and tidal wave.

The official decision to burn many of the bodies of the victims was reached by Gov. Sholtz here last night after a conference with State Health Officer Henry Hansen on his return from a personal survey of the stricken keys by airplane. Gov. Sholtz said he reached his decision only as a last resort to halt the spread of disease.

"I am sorry to have to dissent from President Roosevelt's request that we refrain from cremation," the Governor said, "but the health of our citizens make it necessary that cremation take place at once."

"Five-hundred FERA workers will start cremation at daylight. The task should be completed by tomorrow night. 'It is a painful duty to have to issue this order but after consultation with health officials I am convinced no other course is open to us.'"

SCHOOL BAND, DRUMMERS TO LEAD PARADE

Circleville Delegation to Visit New Holland as Centennial Opens.

The Circleville high school band, the American Legion drum corps and a large delegation of citizens will go to New Holland next Wednesday night to celebrate "Circleville Night" at the centennial celebration.

Circleville was awarded the opening night by the centennial committee. Chillicothe will celebrate on Thursday night and Washington C.-H. has chosen Friday night. The committee announced Saturday as "Everybody's Night."

To Start at 7

The program each evening will start at 7 o'clock. The band concerts and entertainment, features presented by the out-of-towners will be held between 7:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. New Holland will present a floor show at 8:30 and 10:30 p. m. each evening on the dance platform in the village square.

Pets of all types will be entered in the pet parade Wednesday evening at 7 p. m. R. W. Griffith is chairman of the event and prizes will be awarded the winners.

Eddie Kirk's 13-piece orchestra will play for dancing each evening on the village square. In case of inclement weather the dances will be staged in the town hall. Four rides, numerous concessions and a variety of shows will make up the carnival feature of the event.

Antique Show Big

All who attend the event are especially urged by the committee to visit the T. C. Gooley store room and view the hundreds of rare antiques that have been collected. They believe the collection will be the largest ever assembled in this section of the state.

One entire show case of antiques will be displayed by William Tolbert of Atlanta. His 1910 Ford, the oldest Ford in this section, will be on display.

Pastors will be assigned Monday.

BERGER HOSPITAL SPLENDID SCENE; SET VISITOR'S DAY

L. T. Shauer, safety director, and the management of Berger hospital, have extended an invitation to residents of Circleville and Pickaway-co to visit the hospital, Sunday, Sept. 8, which has been set aside as Visitor's Day.

Many beautiful flowers are now in bloom on the hospital grounds and the shrubbery is at its finest.

NOTED AIRMEN TO COME HERE FOR 'AIR DAY'

Mackey and Mougey to Perform Sensational Stunts; Scheduled Sunday.

Pickaway countians who thrill to the roar of airplane motors and death-inviting stunts should find plenty of excitement tomorrow afternoon at the Walter Goodman farm, two miles south of the city, when Circleville celebrates its fifth annual air day with a program of aerial doings. The program starts at 1:30 when the participating ships fly over the city.

Bring Two Leaders

The air show, sponsored by the local chapter of the National Aeronautic association, will bring to Circleville two noted stunt pilots, Lieutenants Joe Mackey and Gordon Mougey. They promise a long string of thrills including inverted acrobatics, outside loops, balloon bursting, ribbon cutting exhibitions, slow and snap rolls. The pilots will conclude their exhibition with a 5,000-foot spiral power dive.

Planes from Columbus and Cleveland are expected here for the celebration.

Major Smith to Judge

Major Fred Smith, director of aeronautics, is also expected here and will probably judge the spot landing contest for which a $10 prize will be given.

Myron Hightower, pioneer aviator pilot, will pilot a transport plane on passenger trips over the city. Bill Sweet will be announcer of the events.

A charge of 25 cents will be made for admission to the grounds, this nominal fee covering parking of the car and all persons in it.

8 AFTER THREE JOBS ON CITY SCHOOL BOARD

Three Run for Mayor in Williamsport and Two in Ashville

EXPECT HOT RACES

Four Village Mayors Are Unopposed

For the first time in many years Circleville is promised an exciting city board of education race.

Eight candidates, two of them incumbents, are seeking the three vacancies on the board.

The candidates are:

Karl J. Herrmann, business manager of The Herald.

John M. Kirwin, cashier for the Norfolk & Western railroad here for 42 years.

Rev. L. C. Sherburne, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Dr. G. D. Phillips, local dentist and president of Pickaway Country club.

Edward Helwigen, auto dealer.

William M. Reid, member of council and former school teacher.

Charles H. May, attorney and president of the board of education.

Clarence R. Barnhart, accountant, and member of the board of education.

Colville Retiring

The terms of Mr. Barnhart, Mr. May and Robert G. Colville, who recently took office as county treasurer, expire this year. Mr. Colville after his election to the county office announced he would not seek re-election to the board.

No contest is offered in the county board of education with C. E. Dick and B. W. Young, present members of the board, seeking re-election.

Three candidates have filed petitions for mayor of Williamsport. They are: William A. Sells, Frank Maley, justice of peace, and William D. Radcliff, attorney. Harry Puffinberger, present mayor, will not seek re-election.

Two at Ashville

E. E. Fraunfelder, incumbent, and Attorney Harry L. Margulis, are seeking the mayor's chair in Ashville. O. M. Beckett, Commercial Point; Edward A. Secoy, Darbyville; Gardner Welch, South Bloomfield, and C. V. Stebelton, New Holland, incumbent mayors, have no opposition.

Eddie Kirk's 13-piece orchestra will play for dancing each evening on the village square. In case of inclement weather the dances will be staged in the town hall. Four rides, numerous concessions and a variety of shows will make up the carnival feature of the event.

Antique Show Big

All who attend the event are especially urged by the committee to visit the T. C. Gooley store room and view the hundreds of rare antiques that have been collected. They believe the collection will be the largest ever assembled in this section of the state.

One entire show case of antiques will be displayed by William Tolbert of Atlanta. His 1910 Ford, the oldest Ford in this section, will be on display.

NEUDING RE-NAMED CHURCH TREASURER

E. S. Neuding, local United Brethren leader, has again been elected treasurer of the southeast Ohio conference convening in Columbus. He has served in this position for several years.

Rev. P. E. Wright of Lancaster, former local pastor, has been elected superintendent of the conference succeeding Rev. A. B. Cox of Newark, also a former local minister.

Pastors will be assigned Monday.

BERGER HOSPITAL SPLENDID SCENE; SET VISITOR'S DAY

L. T. Shaner, safety director, and the management of Berger hospital, have extended an invitation to residents of Circleville and Pickaway-co to visit the hospital, Sunday, Sept. 8, which has been set aside as visitor's day.

Many beautiful flowers are now in bloom on the hospital grounds and the shrubbery is at its finest.

NOTED AIRMEN TO COME HERE FOR 'AIR DAY'

Mackey and Mougey to Perform Sensational Stunts; Scheduled Sunday.

Pickaway countians who thrill to the roar of airplane motors and death-inviting stunts should find plenty of excitement tomorrow afternoon at the Walter Goodman farm, two miles south of the city, when Circleville celebrates its fifth annual air day with a program of aerial diodes. The program starts at 1:30 when the participating ships fly over the city.

Bring Two Leaders

The air show, sponsored by the local chapter of the National Aeronautic association, will bring to Circleville two noted stunt pilots, Lieutenants Joe Mackey and Gordon Mougey. They promise a long string of thrills including inverted aerobatics, outside loops, balloon bursting, ribbon cutting exhibitions, slow and snap rolls. The pilots will conclude their exhibition with a 5,000-foot spiral power dive.

Planes from Columbus and Cleveland are expected here for the celebration.

Major Smith to Judge

Major Fred Smith, director of aeronautics, is also expected here and will probably judge the spot landing contest for which a $10 prize will be given.

W. Myron Hightower, pioneer aviator pilot, will pilot a transport plane on passenger trips over the city. Bill Sweet will be announcer of the events.

A charge of 25 cents will be made for admission to the grounds, this nominal fee covering parking of the car and all persons in it.

Mob Menaces Youth

Alexander Cloutier

Held without bail for county grand jury action, Alexander Cloutier, charged with the slaying of 17-year-old Florence Grenier, is shown in the Biddeford, Me., jail. Cloutier, a native of a milling crowd, was transferred from his jail cell to the courtroom for the hearing under heavy guard.

8 AFTER THREE JOBS ON CITY SCHOOL BOARD

Three Run for Mayor in Williamsport and Two in Ashville

EXPECT HOT RACES

Four Village Mayors Are Unopposed

For the first time in many years Circleville is promised an exciting city board of education race.

Eight candidates, two of them incumbents, are seeking the three vacancies on the board.

The candidates are:
Karl J. Herrmann, business manager of The Herald.

John M. Kirwin, cashier for the Norfolk & Western railroad here for 42 years.

Rev. L. C. Sherburne, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Dr. G. D. Phillips, local dentist and president of Pickaway Country club.

Edward Helwagen, auto dealer.

William M. Reid, member of council and former school teacher.

Charles H. May, attorney and president of the board of education.

Clarence R. Barnhart, accountant, and member of the board of education.

Colville Retiring

The terms of Mr. Barnhart, Mr. May and Robert G. Colville, who recently took office as county treasurer, expire this year. Mr. Colville after his election to the county office announced he would not seek re-election to the board.

No contest is offered in the county board of education with C. E. Dick and B. W. Young, present members of the board, seeking re-election.

Three candidates have filed petitions for mayor of Williamsport. They are: William A. Sells, Frank Maley, justice of peace, and William D. Radcliff, attorney. Harry Puffinberger, present mayor, will not seek re-election.

Two at Ashville

E. E. Fraunfelder, incumbent, and Attorney Harry L. Margulis, are seeking the mayor's chair in Ashville. O. M. Beckett, Commercial Point, Edward A. Secoy, Darbyville, Gardner Welch, South Bloomfield, and C. V. Stebbelton, New Holland, incumbent mayors, have no opposition.

The complete list of petitions filed with the county board of elections follow:

WEST VIRGINIAN SENT TO PRISON

Harry Shull, 26, of Huntington, W. Va., was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory Friday afternoon by Judge Joseph Adkins in common pleas court when he admitted a charge of auto theft.

Shull was arrested last Saturday by state highway patrolmen and Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell on Rt. 23 just south of Circleville in a car belonging to Roland Scott, Scioto-st.

Allen Floyd, 44, Tarlton, was placed under probation for two years by Judge Adkins when he admitted issuing a worthless check.

Miss Eleanor Ryan Talks on Travels

Miss Eleanor Ryan, S. Court-st., who recently returned from a trip to Europe, gave a most enjoyable talk on her travels at a campfire program of Girl Scouts of Pickaway-co, held at Smith's Grove, S. Court-st., Friday evening.

Miss Ryan, a teacher in Circleville high school, took her listeners into France, Germany, Russia, Poland, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium and England, giving charming glimpses of customs and conditions of city and country life, of castle and cathedral. She left the group sighting the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, pleased with many memories but doubly thankful once more to welcome America as home.

In the blazing light of a huge fire, the Girl Scouts enjoyed songs and stunts and heard Mrs. Ward Robinson discuss the part of the scouts in the Junior Fair to be held as a part of the coming Pumpkin Show. Mrs. Robinson urged each girl to plan her own handicraft exhibit.

Refreshments were served by members of Troop No. 4, after which the meeting closed with Schubert's Lullabye and Taps.

Garden Called "Outdoor Living Room" in Talk

The garden was termed "an outdoor living room" by Miss Mary McKenzie, of Pickaway-twp, in an interesting and instructive talk before the Pickaway-co Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Germain Joseph, N. Scioto-st., Friday evening.

An experienced gardener herself, Miss McKenzie vividly related some interesting points on "Tucking the Garden Away for Winter."

It was announced at the meeting that members of the club who participated in Fraser's "All American" giant zinnia contest will sponsor an amateur zinnia show at the home of Mrs. Howard Jones in Park-pl next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The list of prizes will be announced next week.

An invitation was also extended to club members to attend a garden tour in Dayton, Thursday, Sept. 26.

The next meeting of the garden club will be held at the home of Miss Mary Heffner, E. Mound-st., on October 26th.

MISS SCHLEYER O'GIVE RECITAL

Miss Anna M. Schleyer, S. Scioto-st., teacher of piano, will present Miss Elizabeth Reber, Walnut-twp, pianist, assisted by Miss Betty Scothorn, Walnut-twp, in a recital next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Philip's parish house on W. Mound-st.

The public is invited to attend.

Hunsickers Entertain At Country Club

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, W. Union-st., entertained 28 of their friends at a dinner-bride at the Pickaway Country Club, Friday evening.

The club porch, where the guests assembled for dinner, was artistically decorated in fall flowers. Seven tables of bridge were in progress.

High score prizes were awarded Mrs. Harry Heffner and Joseph P. Noecker and consolation prizes were given Mrs. Lincoln Mader and Glen I. Nickerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moats and Family, E. Ohio-st., have returned from a motor trip through the East.

Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. G. I. Nickerson, and Miss Sally Caldwell attended the meeting of Capt. Jonathan Alder Chapter, Daughters of 1812, at the home of Mrs. Mary Taylor, near London, Saturday.

Mrs. I. D. Smith and family, of Petersburg, Va., who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Groce, E. Union-st., will return home Sunday.

Mr. Smith came Friday, accompanied by David Van Meter of Petersburg, to return his family home.

MURDERS A COW

MIDDLETOWN, R. I.—Frank Peckham does not like a musical accompaniment to his sleep—especially when the music is provided by a cowbell. After several nights of the serenades, Peckham grabbed a carving knife, rushed the cow, belonging to Manuel Vargas, and stabbed it to death. Under the old property laws Peckham is liable to a two-year prison sentence and Vargas may collect three times the value of the cow.

The spokesman also stated if Laval should ask the league for the solution, he would be overthrown and disfavored by all the left and liberal forces in France, whose spokesmen, Edouard Herriot and Joseph Paul-Boncour are arriving in Geneva Monday for the meeting of the league assembly.

An Italian spokesman told International News Service: "Nothing of the sort has been offered to us."

Cris Hardly Touched
Laval, in departing for home, warned against over-optimism regarding the deliberations of the committee of five, stating the crisis of the Italo-Ethiopian problem had hardly been touched.

President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State and Edouard Beneš, Czechoslovakian spokesman for the little entente and regarded as one of the league's "little giants," loomed as rival candidates for the presidency of the league assembly.

The British are said to favor Beneš as better versed in league procedure, but the smaller nations which have taken Ethiopia's cause to heart are backing the outspoken Irishman.

The spokesman also stated if Laval should ask the league for this solution, he would be overthrown and disfavored by all the left and liberal forces in France, whose spokesmen, Edouard Herriot and Joseph Paul-Boncour are arriving in Geneva Monday for the meeting of the league assembly.

An Italian spokesman told International News Service: "Nothing of the sort has been offered to us."

Crux Hardly Touched

Laval, in departing for home, warned against over-optimism regarding the deliberations of the committee of five, stating the crux of the Italo-Ethiopian problem had hardly been touched.

President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State and Edouard Benes, Czechoslovakian spokesman for the little entente and regarded as one of the league's "little giants," loomed as rival candidates for the presidency of the league assembly.

The British are said to favor Benes as better versed in league procedure, but the smaller nations which have taken Ethiopia's cause to heart are backing the outspoken Irishman.

KINGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wright, Julius Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Wright and son, George, attended the Grove-Hardshell-Miller reunion at Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Demm and family, near Hayesville.

Mrs. D. E. Kempton and son, Lloyd, were the guests of relatives in Dayton over the week-end and Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ward, of Circleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Betts motored to Portsmouth on Sunday, and crossed the Ohio river and motored up the river to Pomeroy through the Kentucky hills and back home through Jackson and Chillicothe.

Engineer Thomas of Columbus, assisted Warren Black in taking the levels of Kingston streets, on Friday, as the first step toward installing a complete sewage system. The project will be presented to Ross-co WPA headquarters at Chillicothe on Friday for approval and federal aid. This last heavy rain proved that yards, cellars were flooded and the ditches were not adequate in carrying away the surplus water and the only remedy is the installation of a new system of some sort. The village officials are hopeful that help can be obtained for this needed project.

The Kingston Garden club will hold its regular meeting on Monday afternoon Sept. 9, at the home of Mrs. J. P. Gardner, at 2:30 o'clock. A flower show will be held in connection with this meeting. A good attendance is desired.

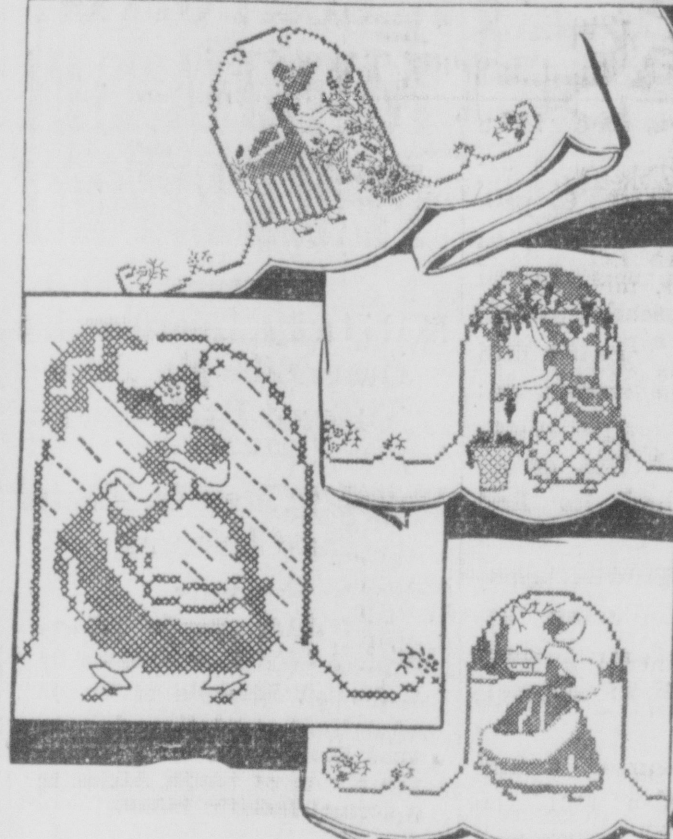

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Breden returned from Canton, Friday. Mrs. Breden has been the guest of relatives for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ross motored to Columbus Saturday and Gerald Ross and Morton Hicks accompanied them back home.

Mrs. Wayne Stonerock and children, of Circleville, were the guests of Miss Mary L. Harpster on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Pontious (Lelia Dresbach), have returned from their wedding journey and expect to make their home near Hallsville on a farm.

A Set of Matching Towels in Cross Stitch

PATTERN 5368

Did you ever wish you could have the various seasons of the year just when you want them? Well, here's your chance! Spring, summer, fall and winter, worked out in colorful embroidery in a matching set of four guest towels that will win many a delighted comment! These motifs also look lovely on pillow cases, tea cloths and scarfs. They work up ever so quickly—most of the embroidery being in 10 to the inch crosses with just a sprinkling of lazy daisy and French knots. The latter add a touch of color while the cross stitch is best done in black or some dark color.

In pattern 5368 you will find a transfer pattern of four motifs averaging 5¼x10½ inches; material requirements; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

USES OF THE CHURCH

The Church is not a refrigerator for preserving perishable piety. It is a dynamo for charging human wills with power. The object of the church is not to tell men how to dodge difficulties, but to furnish strength and courage to meet them. The business of the church is not to furnish hammocks for the lazy; it is rather to offer well-fitting yokes for drawing life's loads. The man who does not attend any church practically votes to do away with all churches.

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

WHAT SHOULD BE THE RESULTS OF A PROPERLY CONDUCTED VACATION CHURCH SCHOOL?
The children should have come to realize that God is in everything and that He is a social being; that we may talk with and help in building a world where there may be abundant living for all.

There should be a growing appreciation of Jesus and a cleaner understanding of his teachings; experiences of living in his Spirit and with the same kind of loyalty to the cause of building a righteous world.

There should be an acceptance of the fact that all mankind is one family, and there should be experiences with more and more people in this world family.

Lydia and Priscilla

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
Scripture—Acts 16:11-15; 18:1-3, 24-28; Rom. 16:1-6.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Upon entering Europe with the gospel Paul came to Philippi. Here they found a group of women to whom they preached. And Lydia, a seller of purple cloth, was converted, becoming the first Christian convert in Europe.

At Corinth Paul met Priscilla and Aquilla, who were also tentmakers and worked with him, probably becoming Christians under Paul's influence. They had been expelled from Rome by Claudius, because they were Jews.

Later they came to Ephesus where Apollos was preaching. This young man's gospel was very imperfect and Priscilla and Aquilla tactfully took him to their home and taught him more perfectly and helped him greatly.

Priscilla and Aquilla always are mentioned together in the Bible and Paul refers to their home as a little church—"the church in their house." All homes should be like theirs.

Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japan's foremost Christian leader, will arrive in this country in December for a six months' lecture tour. Dr. Kagawa will make his first major address before the Student Volunteer Convention at Indianapolis Dec. 28, and will speak the following week before a national convention of leaders of religious, educational and consumers' cooperative groups called to Indianapolis especially to hear Dr. Kagawa.

A Jane Addams postage stamp has been issued by the Turkish government in commemoration of the Istanbul conference, at which women gathered from all over the world. This is probably the only instance of such an honor being bestowed and is a great tribute to the character and worth of the leader whose life was so devoted to the cause for world peace.

Success Through Difficulty
The story is told of a gardener who had long experimented in tulips. He was especially anxious to induce a particular variety to become both double and red. He succeeded in getting it double but it persisted in being white. One night there was a storm and a biting east wind. Some panes of his greenhouse were broken and the bitter wind blew through the house. The following morning as he went around to see what damage had been done, he discovered in one of the double tulips the very color he had so long sought. Flowers are very sensitive and it would seem that the blast of the

Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japan's foremost Christian leader, will arrive in this country in December for a six months' lecture tour. Dr. Kagawa will make his first major address before the Student Volunteer Convention at Indianapolis Dec. 28, and will speak the following week before a national convention of leaders of religious, educational and consumers' cooperative groups called to Indianapolis especially to hear Dr. Kagawa.

The seventh national Eucharistic congress will be held in the Public Auditorium at Cleveland, Ohio Sept. 23-26.

George Fox was called a Quaker because he trembled at the name of God and Quakers they have been called since that day. The title bestowed in scoffing has become a badge of honor.

A Jane Addams postage stamp has been issued by the Turkish government in commemoration of the Istanbul conference, at which women gathered from all over the world. This is probably the only instance of such an honor being bestowed and is a great tribute to the character and worth of the leader whose life was so devoted to the cause for world peace.

The first conference of the Christian young people from the five Balkan states is scheduled to take place this summer at Herzog of these young people will serve to bind the none-too-friendly Balkan peoples more closely together. Some of their most difficult problems have been religious ones.

Success Through Difficulty

The story is told of a gardener who had long experimented in tulips. He was especially anxious to induce a particular variety to become both double and red. He succeeded in getting it double but it persisted in being white. One night there was a storm and a biting east wind. Some panes of his greenhouse were broken and the bitter wind blew through the house. The following morning as he went around to see what damage had been done, he discovered in one of the double tulips the very color he had so long sought. Flowers are very sensitive and it would seem that the blast of the

There should be a growing understanding of the place of law in the universe and an increasing desire to work in harmony with God's laws. There should, finally, be a growing desire for truth.

Lydia and Priscilla ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 16:11-15; 18:1-3, 24-28; Rom. 16:1-6.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Upon entering Europe with the gospel Paul came to Philippi. Here they found a group of women to whom they preached. And Lydia, a seller of purple cloth, was converted, becoming the first Christian convert in Europe.

At Corinth Paul met Priscilla and Aquilla, who were also tentmakers and worked with him, probably becoming Christians under Paul's influence. They had been expelled from Rome by Claudius, because they were Jews.

Later they came to Ephesus where Apollos was preaching. This young man's gospel was very imperfect and Priscilla and Aquilla tactfully took him to their home and taught him more perfectly and helped him greatly.

Priscilla and Aquilla always are mentioned together in the Bible and Paul refers to their home as a little church—"the church in their house." All homes should be like theirs.

BACK TO SCHOOL

ONE great army of the unemployed in Circleville is about to go back to work. This is the army of boys and girls for whom vacation is over and school begins.

In the public schools which open Monday there will be more than 1,500 pupils return to their studies. Here is a magnificent and splendid army of young people, the flower and the hope of the community, who take up their books for the discovery that there is no royal road to knowledge. They learn early that accomplishment means effort.

What an effort to get the youngsters ready! Anxious mothers are going over the wardrobes. Dresses for the girls; trousers and coats for the boys; shoes, socks, sweaters — everything needs attention. In hundreds of homes there is little else being done now except attending to the needs of the children.

And the teachers. They, too, go back to work. They need sympathetic and understanding hearts. The really great teacher is something like a prophet of old whose messages are inspirations. The teacher works for the present and for the future; he lights a lamp in the minds and souls of his pupils which should ever grow with a bright and brighter flame.

In the midst of these sentimental thoughts, we cannot, however, lose sight of the plain, cold realization that with the opening of schools the traffic menace becomes a problem. Children should be frequently warned at home and in the classroom about this danger. And the careless autoist should ponder about the devastating results of his reckless driving.

Really, though, it is a great thing that these youngsters are going back to school — one of the most significant things of our troubled time.

OUR FRIEND, THE MULE

IF this country is going to be logical in its refusal to ship implements of war to combatant countries, it will have to deny the export of the Missouri mule. According to report, mules from the United States will draw Italian light artillery if there is to be an invasion on the Ethiopian plateau. It is a recognition of the status of the mule in military transport. The mule before the gun may play almost as great a part in making it effective as the man behind it.

In the most modern warfare the mule has a greater usefulness than the horse. The sure-footed mule can follow trails on which both the horse and the tank would come to grief. The mule is harder to get out of order as the tractor. They who today get forth on conquest, bent place little reliance upon the neighing steed. The man who drives an mule team may exceed in importance the warrior who gives an exhibition of "noble horsemanship." The hard-headed general might be more disposed to offer a kingdom for a shipload of mules than for a horse, or a thousand horses.

And so we think it proper that interpretation of legislation to safeguard neutrality should raise the question of the status of the mule, and lead to the conclusion that it is fairly to be classed as an implement of war. And this view does not necessarily take into account the power of an offensive in the heels of a mule.

MASTERING BRIDGE (20)

IF NECESSARY, overall an adverse suit of higher rank with a bid of two, although you hold no more than a 5-card suit in a hand containing only 5 probable tricks, including a minimum of one quick trick. You may bid 2-Diamonds over 1-Heart with the first hand shown, or with the second hand bid 2-Hearts over 1-Spade.

When you have two suits to offer partner the odds are 2 to 1 that he can support one of them better than the other. That fact slightly reduces the strength usually required in quick tricks, especially in case the two suits have more than 5 cards each. The first hand beneath may bid 1-Heart over 1-Club, but must not bid 2-Diamonds over a rapid of 2-Clubs. The second hand is worth showing both red suits over an opening bid of 1-Club and a rebid of that suit, or in case adversary next bids 1-Spade. The third hand is sufficiently strong to show both minor suits over bids of both major suits.

CHAPTER 41

NITA was silent again. Janet thought she was listening for something, so she lay very still, too.

"And how . . . how do I come in?" she murmured, when Nita relaxed a bit.

"He made Miss Morelle do it. She fought with him about it. She held out as long as she could. But she was weak, too weak for him. He is stronger than all of us. She had to write the first advertisement to a Vancouver paper. For Maurice wanted a young face around the house! A pretty girl! He suggested she advertise for a companion. More than suggested. He forced Miss Morelle to do it. Well, the first girl didn't suit him. He is very particular. Then you came. Miss Morelle was frightened nearly to death at what he had done, at what she had done, because of him. Hell it was those days.

"But he liked you from the moment he saw you, and he saw you come. He was in the living room behind the back tapestry, where he used to listen to everything Miss Morelle would say.

"He is jealous of your Mr. Rodman . . . but he dared not kill him for fear someone would come and see him . . . Maurice. He hates to have people see him. And very few ever have seen him.

"But his wife is good. Last night he took Mr. Rodman's car away and hid it. Today at the hotel where Mr. Rodman stayed in Boiseval a letter will be received supposedly from Mr. Rodman . . . a letter which will order Mr. Rodman's clothing and effects sent to Vancouver. The letter will say that he decided to go away with Miss Lord, Miss Boiseval's companion. Everyone at the hotel will think the letter is from Mr. Rodman, and that Miss Lord is safe. For Mr. Rodman talked in Boiseval, and Maurice has a way of knowing everything, everything that happens. So you will both be here, although people in Boiseval will think you far away. You will be here, and Maurice will kill Mr. Rodman. Those are his plans. I know them. He does not keep anything to himself. He tells me everything as he used to tell Miss Morelle, to see her suffer.

"No one bothers us up here. Rajah has been with them that. Even Rajah McClure who brings our supplies here to come, he has the dog so much . . .

"I could never talk, of course, after Maurice came and he watches me so closely while McClure is here that I dare not ask for help. Miss Morelle did not want me to . . . it was her punishment, she said. The curse her father had put on her."

"But, Nita, the house is nearly empty . . . only the living room is furnished . . .

"He does not like things that other people have. Things that other people use. At first he broke up the furniture in the rooms, and burned it for firewood. It was terrible to me to see it go like that, but I could say nothing. Even Miss Morelle did not dare to protest.

"One room, the living room, was left completely furnished for appearance sake . . . so that if by chance anyone came in, the house would seem the same. Mr. Rodman was the only visitor we ever had in the 10 years Miss Morelle has been back. He came the night before your arrival, begging help as he was lost in the storm. Maurice saw him riding up in the truck with you the next day to get his car."

"Why . . . why are there no mirrors here?"

"Maurice is afraid of mirrors . . . afraid he will see himself!"

"I can't believe Miss Boiseval is dead. It seems she is in the living room, and I will see her again when I go in there . . .

"She is happier where she is. She has been trying to get away from Maurice for years. That was why she could not walk. Once in their villa outside Paris, he caught her running away . . . 20 years ago."

"After she had stood everything from him. He wanted her to live, and suffer, because of him . . .

"Has he always been like this?"

"Always. He has nothing but hate in his heart. As a boy, he was horrible. As a boy, a devil, and as a man worse. He is as strong as iron. He does not keep anything to himself. He tells me everything as he used to tell Miss Morelle, to see her suffer.

"His music is his own. He has never taken a lesson. For you must know by now that it was Maurice you heard playing. The piano is a passion with him. Sometimes he played for hours at a time, partly to tantalize his mother and partly to amuse himself.

"Maurice, his father, was a musician. I remember when he first came to the house. He was about 15 years old. He was a rough man himself. Maurice and Maurice fell in love at first sight. Simeon suspected nothing at first, however, but he did not like Maurice. Did not like anyone with the look of an aesthete about him, for Simeon was a rough man himself.

"Maurice went away to New York, and then came back again. He used to play to Maurice, on the piano in the living room. Play by the hour. Then, one day, Simeon suddenly came in on each other's arms. He ordered Maurice to go.

"I told you how I helped them get away. In those days it was a hard trip to Vancouver from here. They went on stage at Winston. Maurice's horse ran away the third day, frightened at something. Maurice was killed, before Morelle's eyes. She took the body to Vancouver, and from there across the country and the Atlantic to Paris where she buried it. She dared not come home . . .

"Maurice's son was born on his father's native soil . . . But no happiness came to Miss Morelle through this son. Only misery and despair. She was forced to sign her entire fortune to him when he was but a boy . . . and after that she seldom had any money for herself. Maurice had it all. She shielded him in everything he did. Was he not her son and Maurice's?"

Nita rose, and lighting a candle, started fussing around the kitchen.

"Mr. Rodman will think we have forgotten him," Janet said as she followed her in, and sat down on the chair.

Mechanically Nita shook her head, then half smiled as she answered, "We can do nothing for him yet. Rajah is still with him. I know, I know. Else he would be in here with you."

Through the window, the girl could see the white flowers on Morelle Boiseval's grave. They shone luminous and ghostly in the starlight.

"I saw a face twice in the crystal . . . a man with red hair. Miss Boiseval said it was her father."

"It was Maurice."

"How did she get the crystal?"

"An old woman gave it to her in Paris. A woman to whom she went in despair when Maurice was quite young. The woman told her that all she could hope for was death, and that she would see her death foretold in the crystal. After that she wore it always, and was constantly looking in it."

"Is it true that she carried her chameleon as a charm?"

"Yes. I found it for her once in the woods, and I noticed that Rajah hated it, seemed to fear it. So I brought it to her. She was afraid of the dog, although he never bothered her while she had the chameleon about her neck."

"Maurice took it from her. He was there last night with her . . . and played. His music almost drove her mad. He knew this . . .

"After a little Nita suggested Janet be down and rest again for a while. She fixed the cot, and found a heavy quilt which she put on the floor beside it for herself. Janet protested, sleeping in the cot when Nita was so tired. But the woman would not listen.

In a few moments the girl was asleep.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

While no attendance figures are available, and since the picture is still establishing box office records in smaller theatres throughout the country, it is admitted that Grace Moore's first Columbia production, "One Night of Love," has been seen by more persons than any other picture of the past decade.

To the millions who witnessed Miss Moore in her first triumph and who have been impatiently awaiting her second Columbia picture, "Love Me Forever," the Cliftona Theatre now announces that it has secured this picture for showing beginning Sunday.

Preview critics and others privileged to attend private showings of "Love Me Forever" claim that the latter picture is even greater than "One Night of Love." Aside from its larger cast, its variety of background, and its number of beautiful and impressive sets to bear out their statements.

Many are of the opinion that Miss Moore's voice is even more beautiful than before. Columbia Studios, recipients of the award from the Society of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for sound recording, state that new methods of recording have been employed which bring out qualities in Miss Moore's voice, not heard in "One Night of Love."

AT THE GRAND

A new high in hilarity—even for Will Rogers—is struck in his latest starring picture for Fox Film, "Doubting Thomas," now playing at the Grand Theatre, with a supporting cast of such favorites as Billie Burke, Alison Skipworth, Sterling Holloway, Gail Patrick, Frances Grant and Frank Albertson.

AT THE CIRCLE

Cameo is no more. The famous white horse, which has been almost a Hollywood landmark for the past 12 years, is dead. This famous steed, ridden by its equally famous owner, was a familiar figure on Hollywood's bridge paths for many years, and it was like parting with a nearest and dearest friend when Hobart Bosworth learned that his faithful steed had passed away.

The death of Cameo occurred just prior to Bosworth's signing for the role of the old Bee Keeper in Monogram's picturization of "Keeper of the Bees," the famous Gene Stratton-Porter classic which comes to the Circle Theatre for a run of 2 days, starting Sunday.

Johnson's Good Work In New York to Win Him Offer to Continue

WASHINGTON—General Hugh Johnson has made a big hit with Roosevelt because of the way he launched the Work-Relief program in New York City. Johnson is to be asked to stay on indefinitely after October 1, the date the ex-NRA boss originally planned to quit . . . Johnson however, is undecided about continuing, has offers of several lecture tours paying him $1,000 a night . . . Contrary to general belief, Huey Long's filibuster that killed the social security appropriations was not a one-man affair. Sitting by his side, egging him on throughout his six and a half hours of babble, was Oklahoma's blind Democratic Senator Thomas Gore, a caustic New Deal foe. A queer angle to Gore's participation in the fight was the fact that the appropriation provided $2,800,000 in pensions to the blind . . . The five children of Dr. John Madden, head of the new National Labor Relations Board, have a family orchestra, entertain their friends with ambitious musical programs . . . Under the direction of army engineers, a model city housing 10,000 workers and families is being built at Passamaquoddy Bay, Me., in only 45 days. In charge of the project are Colonel Philip Fleming and Captain Roy B. Lord . . . When President Roosevelt signed the Holding Company Act he handed the first pen to Chairman Sam Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, with the remark: "You are entitled to the first pen, Sam, because you had the hardest job in putting this great measure through."

Passed Over

When Major General Benjamin Fois steps out as Chief of the Army Air Corps next December his successor will be chosen from the list of flying colonels. Brigadier General Oscar Westover, deputy chief, probably will be passed over because he is too closely allied with his departing superior . . . An unadvertised provision, slipped into the recently enacted banking bill, gives the Federal Reserve Board power to raise or lower interest rates on postal savings and on funds re-deposited by postal authorities. Savings banks have been bombarding Washington to cut postal savings rates, and the Reserve Board is now in a position to perform this little favor if it so desires. The banks have also launched a drive to put the postal savings system out of business. They contend that with their own deposits now being insured by the Federal Government, the postal system is unnecessary. On July 1, postal deposits totaled $1,204,508,498. Representative Sam Pettergill, South Bend, Ind., Democrat, told colleagues before departing Washington that his bill fight against the President's Holding Company Bill "probably" would cost him his seat in the 1936 election. If that is so, it will cause no shedding of tears in the inner White House sanctuary. Kansas City, with a 6,500,000 WPA-financed auditorium, is planning a strong bid for both national conventions next year. The new structure cover 5½ acres, will be air-conditioned and have a seating capacity of 15,000. . . . Searching for four-leaf clovers has become a fad among visitors to Mount Vernon. The story has spread that if found on the historic estate, the leaves have particularly efficacious powers to bring good fortune . . . Railroad company purchases of streamlined trains have been put on an installment basis. Under a new policy launched by the RFC, loans up to 80 per cent will be made to the manufacturers of the equipment to enable them to sell on long-time terms to the carriers. Under this plan, railroads unable to borrow from banks will be able to modernize . . . Although Congress has been in adjournment for two weeks the Congressional Record is still appearing every day and will continue to do so until Sept. 10. The post-session continuation of the publication, a regular practice, is to allow members to insert speeches under the "Extension of Remarks" rule.

Exercises for Various Parts —Wrist, Hip, Knee, Ankle

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EXERCISES for the hand and wrist after injury, in order to restore normal function are as follows:

1. Wring out a wet towel. Start with a hand towel and work up to a double thickness of bath towel.

2. Pick up a soft rubber ball, squeezing it and letting it go, alternately, 20 or 30 times.

3. With the hand resting on the side, carry a book between the thumb and the fingers.

4. Make a fist with the fingers and thumb and again, Do this over and over again. Do it against resistance offered by the other hand.

5. Sitting at a table with the forearm resting on the little finger side of the hand, touch the tip of the thumb to the tip and the base of each finger, making a circle.

6. Sitting with the hand resting on the table palm down, spread the fingers. Do it against resistance by grasping the fingers with the other hand.

7. Sitting with the hand resting on the table palm down, move the hand toward the thumb and then toward the little finger, making resistance in each direction with the other hand.

the knees straight, reach forward and touch the toes.

3. Lying on the back with the knees straight, raise both legs to an angle of 90 degrees and move them forward and back alternately.

Note: Elderly patients who have broken their hips should not attempt any of these exercises except under doctor's orders.

Exercise of the knee joint:

1. Move the knee cap without moving the knee by contracting the muscles of the leg.

2. Lying on your face with the knee bent, the foot supported by the manipulator, straighten the leg out.

3. Lying on the side, straighten the knee and bend it alternately.

4. Sitting on the edge of the table with the legs hanging, swing them back and forth against resistance and without resistance.

5. Bicycle riding, kneeling, sitting back on the heels as much as possible.

Exercises for the ankle and foot:

1. Sitting with the knees crossed, the foot slightly turned in, pull the foot up. Curl the toes under, pulling hard. With the toes curled under, pull the foot up and in and up.

2. Put a board down on the floor and put the foot on it with the toes hanging over the edge. Curl them over; try to touch the floor with the toes.

INITIAL PLAY GIVEN SQUAD BY LANDRUM

Several Sophomores Looking Good; Rosary May Be Booked For Sept. 27.

With several sophomores putting in strong bids for varsity positions, Coach Jack Landrum today had given his aspirants their first play.

Every practice during the week has been devoted to conditioning with blocking and tackling, getting plenty of play. Easing up just a little from this strenuous practice, Landrum divided the first play on Friday and the boys ate it up. More are to be handed out next week and by the time Sept. 20 gets here, the boys will be ready for Groveport's usually pretty good team.

From persons watching practice sessions it is learned that several of the sophs have better than an even chance to make the grade. Leading the list are Dave Jackson, Earl Garner, Louie Cooper and a couple of others. Garner has shown some of the deadliest tackling of the early season workouts and may make up for his lack of size by his aggressiveness.

Henderson Possibility

Possibility is seen that Jimmy Henderson may get the call in a backfield position and that Will Friley will be placed permanently at end. Henderson has been looking mighty good running back punts. Friley's ability at an end is a foregone conclusion.

However, Coach Landrum is hating no athlete for any position at this time. Every boy is starting from scratch and where each shows the best ability is where he will be played.

Several line positions are in doubt but there are a lot of boys contesting for them. Coach Landrum is paying much stress to the line jobs where he believes the secret of success of any team lies. "If our line isn't up to snuff then our backs can't go anywhere," he said. A lineman has just as much chance to shine as any backfield man.

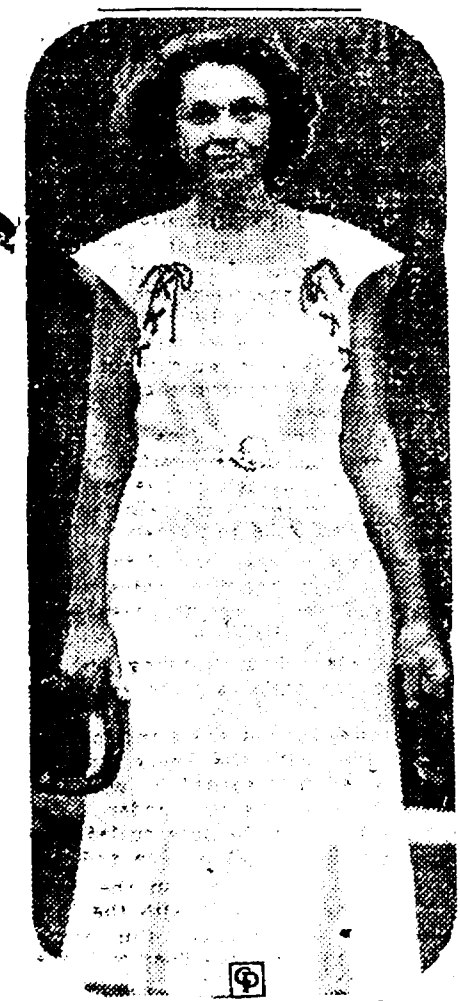

An important practice was on the schedule for this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

May Book Rosary

E. E. Reger, faculty manager of athletics, disclosed today that Holy Rosary school of Columbus will probably be the Sept. 27 foe. A two-year contract has been offered the Columbus parochial school and it is believed it will be accepted.

The Rosary team came here a couple of years ago as a set-up but surprised Coach Heberholz athletes by taking home a victory. Next week the real work will start with every available boy in school expected to be on the field. Coach Landrum is hoping to have a squad of 50 boys out for the varsity at all times. This figure does not include those out for the freshman squad, with Landrum hoping to have a full team of yearlings.

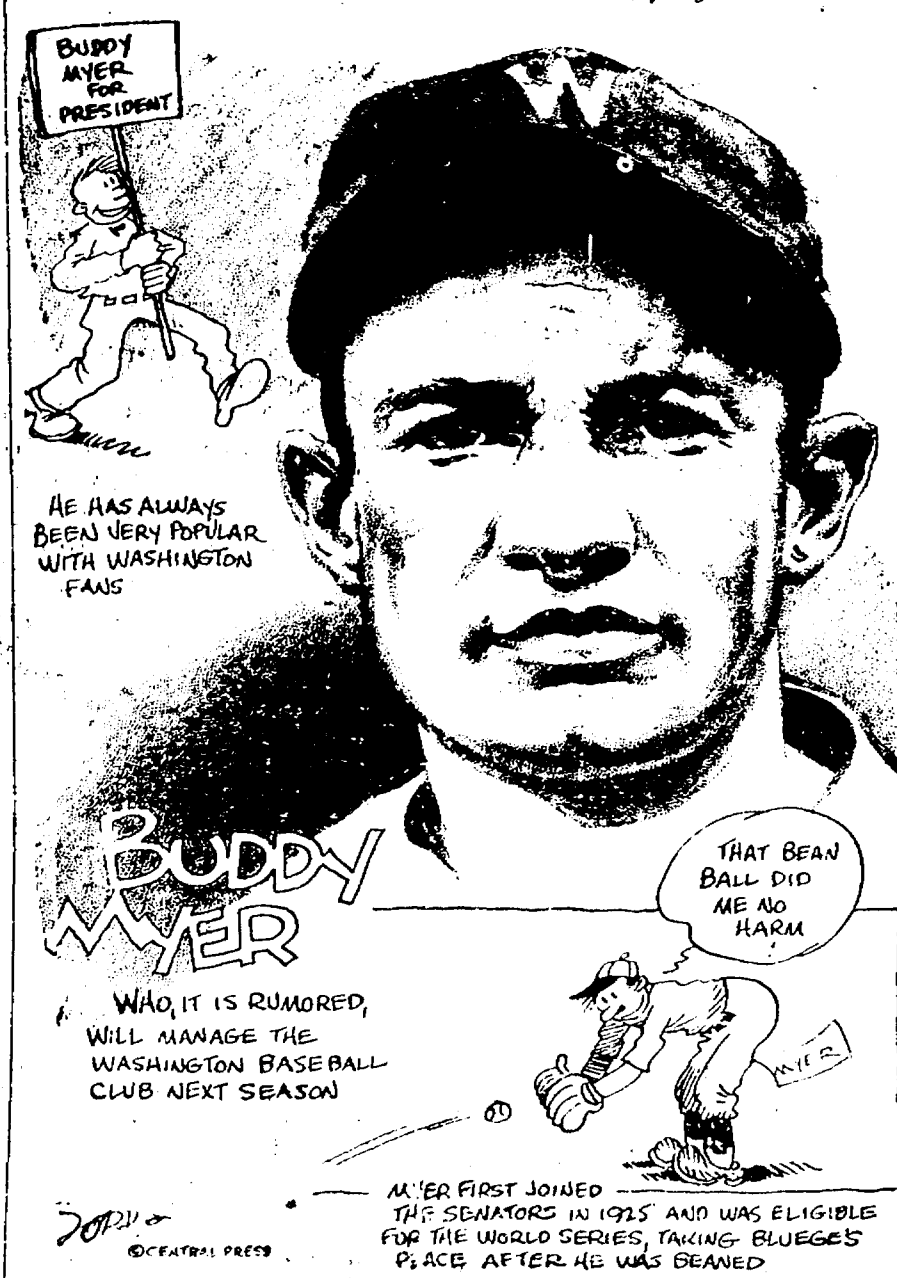

Horseshoe Champ

Mrs. Esther James

Mrs. Esther James, above, of Hastings, Mich., became the new women's horseshoe pitching champion in the national championship at Moline, Ill., when she tossed 86 ringers out of 100 shoes, scoring 266 points. Mrs. James had 37 double ringers, 14 of them in succession.

CAN 'BOMBER' TAKE BAER'S POWER, TOPIC

Playboy's Backers Know Louis Can Give It; Co-Manager Scoffs at Idea.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 7.—The chief argument used by the Max Baer cohorts in nominating the Livermore lothario to whip Joe Louis concerns the question of the Brown Bomber's ability to "take it."

That he can "give it" is unquestioned. But can he stand up under a prodigious clout on the chin—the sort of a clout Baer is capable of delivering?

John Roxborough, however, is nursing no doubt whatever on this score. Co-manager of Louis and a sort of "Go-father" to Shufflin' Joe, the former University of Michigan basketball star and at present prominent attorney in Detroit has seen his protege in almost every bout in which he has engaged since he donned the mittens in his first amateur bout, slightly more than three years ago.

Laugh Can't Take It

"That's a laugh about whether Joe can 'take it' or not," Roxborough declared today. "He hasn't had to 'take it' very often. But even the best boxer and fighter in the world cannot duck them all, and, occasionally, Joe has been hit. But I've never seen any one really hurt him, not even in his first bout, when Johnny Miller had him down several times."

"It was nervousness more than anything else with Joe that night. His first time in the ring, he had a touch of 'stage-fright,' as any kid would have."

"Joe was a bit unsteady when the opening bell rang and, almost before he knew what had happened, he was on the floor. But he got up. He went down again, and again, but kept getting up. It was a three-round bout, and after the first two rounds he pulled himself together and whipped Miller in the last session."

'TEEING OFF'

BY THE HIDDEN KEY.

Johnny Mader, by intense practice, tossed his driver 158 yards 2 feet. This is a record for this course and entitles him to compete in the international driver-thriving-contest in Afghanistan this winter.

Harold Grant, who has been taking some lessons, broke 50 recently the first time in his career; was he happy?

HITS AND MISSES:

New clubs, a buckskin bag and tailored slacks make a big difference. Charley Brunner, but they don't fool the golf ball!

Speaking of lost balls; after 29 consecutive slices, Karl Herrmann lost the golf course ("Don't blame us, Karl, this was contributed")

Replacing divots is hard work but Mrs. Sterling Lamb is planning to cross creeping bent with a rubber plant to produce a self-replenishing divot, that automatically snaps back in place.

IDA UZDA.

Lent C. Hanson is never satisfied. Give him the National Open cup (he won the club cup) and he'd be yelling "Where is the saucer?"

DID YOU EVER THINK:

It is suggested that members refrain from starting out in two-somes or three-somes. Mr. Hrobon, the club pro, will gladly introduce other congenial members to complete any foursome, and this is especially desired of members on busy week-ends and holidays.

NOTICE

Divots—Carry Us Back Please, as our fairways now enjoy a splendid condition second to none let's retain it for your's and my pleasure.

ROSS STRETCHES GANS ON ROPES

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 7.—Barney Ross, welterweight champion, knocked out Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles negro, in the second round of their scheduled 10 round bout here last night.

Ross draped Gans on the ropes in the first round with a stiff left to the stomach. The game punch cleared the negro for a knockout shortly after the second round opened.

Ross' title was not at stake as Gans was instructed to enter the ring over the 145-pound welter weight limit. Gans weighed 154½; Ross 144½.

DALLAS, Tex. Joe J. Murphy, city water system claim adjuster, is still gasping from this one. When he answered the phone, Mrs. Mary McChesney had a complaint to make. "I wish you'd check up on my meter," she said. "I'm sure it isn't registering as much water as I'm using."

Wins Eight Net Battles In a Row

Virginia Hollinger

DAYTON, O., Sept. 7.—Eight tennis championships without losing a set! That is the unusual record Virginia Hollinger, 18-year-old Dayton schoolgirl has established this year in tournaments all over the country.

Starting in January by winning the national girls' indoor championship, Miss Hollinger has swept through seven successive events since without dropping a set. Only once did an opponent force a match to duce. Her conquests came in the Mary K. Browne Lake Erie college meet, Oakwood high school tournament, Western girls', Northern Ohio girls', Ohio Valley girls', Cincinnati Center and Dayton city tournaments.

Boasting a sound game in every department, Miss Hollinger has defeated many men stars of this section and is considered ready to compete in national tournaments next year. She will be a ranking favorite in the girls' outdoor championships in Philadelphia.

COOL BURGLAR

LONG BEACH, Cal. — Police here sought a cool burglar who calmly robbed the apartment of Kathryn Melanson while the occupants too ill to summon aid, watched him from her bed. Miss Melanson, recently discharged from a hospital, attempted to call aid as the intruder was leaving but her voice was too weak to be heard by neighbors. The burglar escaped with $25.

Champ Gum-Chewer

SAN DIEGO, Cal. — Because he can chew the largest wad of gum fastest, stretch it farthest, and pop it the loudest, Marvin Yett, 9-year-old San Diego school boy, has been proclaimed gum-chewing champion of California Pacific International Exposition. The champion won a $25 cash prize and $50 worth of merchandise in competition with 1,000 others.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Hal and Pete in Money

Hal King and Pete Jablonoski (now Appleton), former Columbus ball players, get into the International league cash by virtue of the Montreal team clinching first position in the loops.

Eby Helping Landrum

Coach Jack Landrum of the high school is getting some valuable help with Byron Eby, former Ohio State star, helping with his backfield candidates—Landrum is always glad to meet interested citizens on the athletic field.

Liebold Given Purse

Manager Harry Liebold of Syracuse was given a purse by followers of his team for the success of the lub—The team finished in third place—Nemo, also, is a former Columbusite.

Now Speed-Ballers

Many of the county high schools are going in for speed-ball very enthusiastically—There will be a lot of games in the next few weeks between the schools—Five years ago Williamsport, Ashville and Walnut-twp had football but all have given up the rough game as a poor investment.

Four Experts to Write

Here's an announcement of interest to you football players and fans—The Herald is going to be expertly covered through the entire football season by Coaches Harry Stuhldreher, Clark Shaughnessy, Harry Mehre and Babe Hollingberry. All are authorities and each will cover a different section of the nation. Stuhldreher, Mehre south, Shaughnessy East Ten and central states, and Hollingberry west—Their articles will be handled by Bill Braucher sports editor for Central Press.

Scene of Polygamy Trials

Mohave County courthouse (below), at Kingman, Ariz., will be scene of trials of members of colony of religious polygamists discovered in mountains nearby, by County Prosecutor E. ETHIOPIAN CONSUL TO U. S. BESIEGED BY SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE, SALESMEN

But Nation Wants Neither Men Nor Supplies

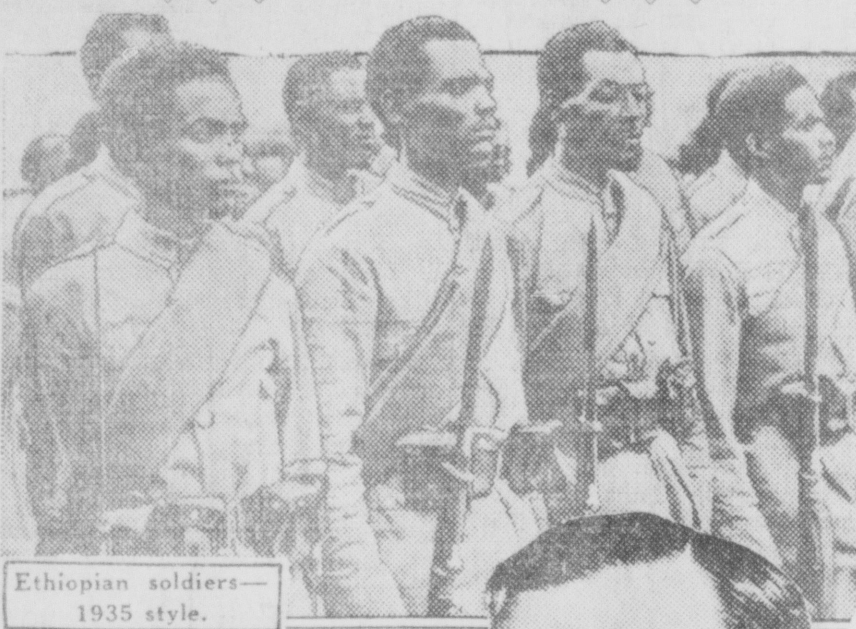

NEW YORK.—While the impending Italo-Ethiopian war with its ominous threats of another world-wide conflict holds the center of the stage, a small, middle-aged, grim-faced man here in New York wishes the days had more than 24 hours each.

For as the solitary diplomatic representative in America of the Ethiopian government, John H. Shaw, British-born U. S.-African importer, and personal friend of Emperor Haile Selassie, has run himself and two secretaries ragged politically acknowledging but turning aside persons besieging the office. Several thousand soldiers of fortune—generals, colonels, flyers and others—have offered themselves. While salesmen have offered wool blankets, mules, saddles, flame throwers, and other military supplies.

A Rush for Consulate When the news was heard that Haile Selassie had appointed an American representative there was a rush for the new Ethiopian consulate. Curiosity seekers found the address and office of Consul Shaw at 78 Water street in an old three-story warehouse, two blocks from the river front and nestled between the frowning stone peaks of Wall street's financial skyscrapers and the open doors of aroma-producing coffee blending mills.

There is nothing outside to reveal that behind the simple sign—John H. Shaw, Importer—behind the white painted office window partitions, stands the symbol of a vivid world drama, of 15 million Ethiopians ready to defend their native land.

Admires Ethiopians Consul Shaw is a man of dignity. To him, the drama—being waged over in Africa is not the slightly comic opera affair that some writers have tried to make readers believe it is. Shaw, who as Ethiopian soldiers—1935 style.

He refuses offers of aid and turns down war salesmen.

Ethiopia's sole diplomatic representative in America, Consul John H. Shaw, daily turns down offers of salesmen to sell Ethiopia military supplies from mules to flame throwers.

a boy in Manchester, England, first encountered the Ethiopians in trade dealings more than 30 years ago, has visited and lived in Addis Ababa a dozen times. He admires the Ethiopians highly.

"The Ethiopians won't be sat on," declares Consul Shaw, softly, and the interviewer sees along the wooden walls voiceless but tangible confirmation. Yellowish, steel-hard leather shields, flanked by long razor-edged spears with thin, sword-like handles. Short two-edged swords such as the ancient Roman legionaries used as successfully in their many wars. Plumed headresses and fierce primitive whitish-yellow lionmanes draped over an inlaid ivory African table. They are part of the gifts Shaw has brought back from his many treks to Ethiopia.

And on the wall, yellowed by

the years, are collections of photographs. Ethiopian circular huts, native workmen, white-clad warriors, scenes of seemingly impassable valleys and insurmountable peaks, dense vistas of unbroken forest land and shrubbery that no man including Ethiopian natives ever has dared venture into.

Trying to get a definite statement out of Consul Shaw is difficult. The reason he says "no" to most questions, he informs you, is because "he doesn't know, and not many other people do either." And he intimates he's a little weary of the fables that pass for truth.

"How large is the Ethiopian army?"

"No one knows. But every man in the country is a soldier. The last census several years ago gave approximately 15 million citizens. As far as I know, Ethiopia is not buying munitions and arms in the U. S. She is only buying what she needs and is not seeking credit anywhere in the world. Ethiopia has bought nothing in the way of war supplies here."

Consul Shaw is a little "fed up" with the war supplies business, one learns.

Disturbed Even at Home Even at his home, Ethiopia's diplomatic spokesman finds himself contacted. There are telegrams from every part of the country, long distance telephone calls from people who insist they have matters of importance to discuss, and importunities from drunks who want to contribute to the emperor's war chest. And every one is acknowledged. Consul Shaw announces with dignity. As for people who wish to do their mite for Ethiopia, an organization has been formed with headquarters in New York City—the Committee for the Ethiopian Crisis—to accept contributions.

As for actual military service, please excuse it, Consul Shaw pleads, Ethiopia has its own armed forces and is refusing everyone from generals to buck privates. And to make doubly sure, Shaw is refusing, under orders, to give passports to any traveler to Ethiopia with the slightest tinge of soldier-of-fortune in his makeup.

No Ethiopians in U. S. As far as Shaw knows, there are no Ethiopian born visitors or immigrants in the United.

He had been trying for years to have an Ethiopian consul appointed for the United States to boost trade between the two nations. In 1933 trade amounted to approximately $150,000. Recently, by wireless, he was informed that Ethiopia officials agreed with him that there should be an Ethiopian consul and he was it.

OBITUARY

Reuben Edward Betz, son of Peter J. and Amelia Morris Betz, was born July 2, 1868, and departed this life at his home in Washington-twp, Aug. 28, 1935. Aged 67 years, 1 month, and 26 days.

On March 28, 1895, he was united in marriage with Florence M. Pontious, to this union was born one son, Ralph Edgar Betz, whom with his widow are left to mourn his death.

He was a kind and devoted husband and father, and will be greatly missed by his family, and a wide circle of friends and neighbors who will ever cherish his memory.

His entire life had been spent on the farm and throughout his life he was noted for his honesty, industry, and sobriety, faithful to all responsibilities entrusted to him. He was the last of his immediate family.

TOWN and COUNTY

News of the Day Recorded in Brief

Friday

High, 75; Low, 40.

Millar Improved

Seymour Millar, of near South Bloomfield, who has been in White Cross hospital, Columbus, convalescing from an operation, has been removed to his home and is reported much improved.

Re-Named As Chief

Paul Orinhood, has been reappointed chief of the New Holland fire department. Mr. Orinhood resigned several months ago to accept a position at the Hocking Glass factory. He returned to the village several weeks ago. During his absence C. W. Briggs served as chief of the department.

Marriage Licenses

Charles W. Heery, 24, clerk, Columbus, and Helen May Torrence, Circleville.

Oscar Hedding, 35, machinist, Dayton, and Marie Fisher, Circleville.

Delbert W. Mills, 22, meat cutter, Columbus, and Roberta Frances Garner, Circleville.

Albert S. Holbein, 21, shoe cutter, Columbus, and Mary Jane Davis, Ashville, Rt. 2.

Two More Fined

Two more county residents have been assessed fines of $10 and costs $5 suspended, in H. O. Eveland's court for failure to purchase dog tags. They are: Brooks Norman, Pickaway-twp, and Carl Palm, Washington-twp.

Building New Home

Dr. L. M. Tarbill, New Holland veterinarian, has started construction on a new home on Front-st in the village.

To Preach Sunday

Dr. L. M. Tarbill, R. F. D. 1, will preach at the Morris U. B. Church Sunday evening in a farewell message as he is leaving Sept. 10 to enter Ashbury college.

Two Are Released

Henry Sowards, Williamsport, was released from the county jail Saturday after serving out a fine of $50 and costs handed out July 15 on a game law violation. Cecil Johnson, Coalton, was released from jail Saturday after paying a fine assessed recently for driving while intoxicated.

Sack of Feed Found

Police announced Saturday they have a 25-lb. sack of Eschelman's feed found Friday night on S. Court-st. They ask the owner to call for it.

Takes Judgment

Judgment for $2,664.44 was returned in common pleas court Saturday on a note action brought by Ella D. Noble against Allen P. West. Ray W. Davis is attorney for the plaintiff.

When you go into a booth and ask for a ballot for either Hoover or Roosevelt, you're just asking for an introduction to a gatekeeper of hell—Huey Long.

TWO ASPIRE TO HEAD AUXILIARY

Leadership of the American Legion Auxiliary will be sought by two women when the organization holds its convention at St. Louis, Sept. 23-26. The two candidates are Mrs. Thomas Gammie of Ponca City, Okla., and Mrs. Melville Muckelstone, Chicago, Ill. The one elected will succeed Mrs. A. C. Carlson, Willmar, Minn., present national auxiliary president.

TO CONTEST UTILITIES REGULATION

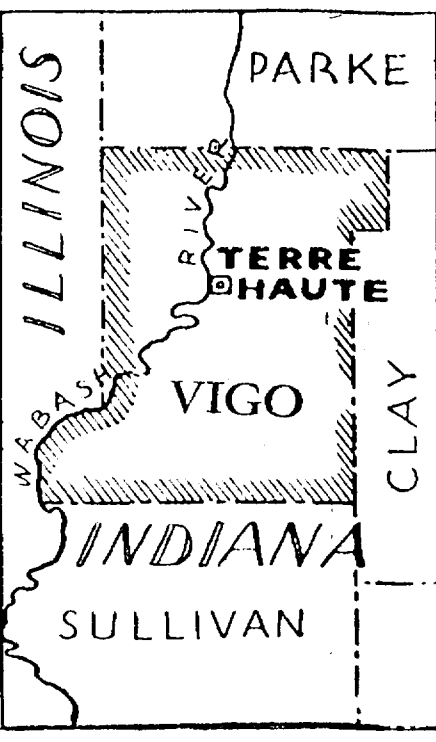

A concerted attack will be made by the utility industry on the recently passed public utility holding company bill. The attack will be financed through the Edison Electric Institute. In addition to Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck, already retained as counsel, it is expected that John W. Davis (J. P. Morgan's lawyer) and Henry Stimson will be employed. This would comprise the highest-priced legal staff ever retained, it is believed. Baker was secretary of war under President Wilson. Beck, formerly a Republican congressman from Philadelphia, is a constitutional lawyer who has been mentioned for the Republican nomination for president. John W. Davis, considered the leading corporation lawyer in America, was a Democratic nominee for president. Stimson was secretary of state under President Hoover.

Powers Haggood

A vigorous fight has been started in Terre Haute, Ind., by the Socialist party for a "showdown" on the right of free speech under martial law in Vigo county. Norman Thomas, titular head of the party, and Powers Haggood, Indiana Socialist leader, are conducting the battle personally. Haggood was held in jail incommunicado for several days when he refused to promise not to speak in the area. Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana has kept Vigo county under martial law since a general strike several weeks ago. Union men have complained that they have not been permitted to attend meetings and that the strike over which the general strike was called has not been arbitrated. Besides Haggood, Leo Vernon, a Socialist party worker of Madison, Wis., also was arrested by the militia, when he addressed a mass meeting of workers.

Local Educators Hit

He put his preaching into practice and it was no secret among students at the high school that his classes were really a pleasure to attend. When he left the classroom last January to become one of the youngest superintendents of schools in Circleville school history, succeeding the late Edwin L. Daley, Fischer was still intensely interested in developing this idea. From time to time he had teacher conferences to discuss the problem.

Last spring when C. L. Glenn resigned as teacher of social sciences, Fischer began looking around for a man who would carry on his experiment. Robert E. Jewett, a graduate of Ohio State university, seemed to fill the bill perfectly.

The teacher of the old school will be horror-stricken to read some of the recommendations made by the two men in their thesis. Here are two of them:

1. Students should be allowed to keep their textbooks open in social science classes. "Closed books have no value in either the pupil's present life nor in his future living," they say.

2. The newspaper, changed at intervals, should be made the basis of the social science course in either grade 11 or grade 12. "The value of the newspaper for such use cannot be overestimated," it is pointed out.

The local educators stress that in class discussion the teacher's opinion on issues shall be kept in the background. "Occasionally," they write, "the teacher without undue influence may express his opinion providing the pupil asks for it. In general, however, one should say to the pupil, 'It doesn't matter what I think, what is your opinion?'"

Lists Many Issues

As a means of "instilling change mindedness and habits of forming judgments" among students, Fischer and Jewett list a number of issues in their report—historical, political, economic, sociological, and religious in nature—which they propose for student discussion. The pupil will be invited to arrive at his own individual conclusions on all the issues, with the following questions in mind:

"To what degree has each of your conclusions been arrived at upon the merits of the case rather than upon past prejudices and emotional thinking about the case?"

"Did you judge each issue from the standpoint of being a citizen of no particular country, a member of no political party, and a member of no religious sect?"

The issues, quite timely and extremely interesting in nature, include such questions as the following:

"Is Japan as justified in asking for a Monroe Doctrine for Japan as for a century and a half America has been justified in demanding one for herself?"

"Mr. X says, 'The U. S. should return to the Gold Standard because it has served us successfully in the past.' Do you agree to both points involved?"

"Do you think that we could frame a Constitution in 1935 which unchanged would serve the needs of the people in 2081?"

"Did the Puritans believe in religious liberty or merely in religious liberty for the Puritans?"

"If Washington were alive today would he still think applicable after a century and a half his injunction that America should keep out of foreign entanglements?"

"Which of the present-day Americans shows the more patriotic attitude: the one who is against the TVA because it is a Roosevelt measure or the one who is for the TVA because it is a Roosevelt measure?"

"Is the Republican party of 1935 more like the Republican party of 1915 or like the Democratic party of 1915?"

Should Have Place

The local school men agree that certain facts which have cultural value for the student by reason of their functioning in his present, past or future experiences, should occupy a spot in the social science course. Here are some facts, they think, whose probable functioning in the pupil's life justify their being learned:

1—Circleville is on the 40 degree parallel.

2—Italy is as large as three Ohio's.

3—Examples of columns which can be found in Circleville.

4—Name our 1935 city and county officers.

5—What is the stratosphere? Grades should not be the means of measuring results, the thesis writers point out. Of infinitely greater importance in measuring a pupil's progress and determining his "grade" in a course, are the following factors, Fischer and Jewett maintain:

1—Is the pupil learning to base his conclusions on the merits of the case rather than upon his own personal wishes?

2—Is he developing flexibility and courage in changing his mind?

3—Does he concede that his opinion has presented stronger arguments for the opposite side of the case?

4—Does the pupil feel free graciously to disagree with the opinion of his teacher?

5—Are his final conclusions inclined to be what he has logically thought out for himself rather than what others indicated he must believe?

An intelligent answer to all of these questions is contributing toward an ideal education, the local educators believe.

FRENCH SEND 673

TO PENAL ISLAND

SAIN-MARTIN-DE-RE, France, Sept. 7.—Herded into steel cages aboard the convict transport La Martiniere, 673 desperate characters sailed at noon today for Devil's Island.

They caught their last glimpse of France through the dirty glass panes of narrow portholes as the "miserable vessel" headed out into the Bay of Biscay.

MOUNT STERLING

TO OBTAIN HOTEL

MT. STERLING, Sept. 7.—This village is convinced business is on the road to recovery, officials declared today, as Thomas Garruth, Heflin, Ala., revealed he plans to give the community a new hotel. Mt. Sterling has been without a hotel for months.

200 APPROVE RURAL

ELECTRICITY MOVE

XENIA, Sept. 7.—More than 200 farmers adopted the plans for a rural electrification project in Greene-co last night, committee-men said today. They also passed a resolution, empowering the Ohio Farm Bureau federation to represent the county at Washington for a loan to finance the program.

MUSIC INSTRUCTOR

HIRED AT WALNUT

Troy E. Beldon of Lima has been employed teacher of music at the Walnut-twp school by the board of education. He succeeds Miss Mildred Ruffner.

TWO FACE CHARGES

Loren Hidy, 33, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, and William Holtmeyer, 27, Easton, Kas., were brought to the county jail Friday evening after being bound to the grand jury under $300 bond each by J. W. Wright, New Holland justice of peace, on theft charges.

Officers said the men are charged with stealing tools from an automobile.

SHE'S A RIOT

PHILADELPHIA—Two policemen who attempted to break up a street brawl today got more than they bargained for when they singled out Elizabeth Godfrey, 28. As they sought to arrest the woman she thrashed about wildly, scratched both patrolmen and kicked them in the stomach. She was finally subdued by police reinforcement. The "riot squad" took her to jail on an assortment of charges, and the policemen—both the worse for wear and tear—went to a hospital.

According to the leader of a Minnesota homestead project, "It takes two G's—gumption and grit"—to put it across. Plus, of course, the 22 furnished by Uncle Sam to buy the land.

Leadership of the American Legion Auxiliary will be sought by two women when the organization holds its convention at St. Louis, Sept. 23-26. The two candidates are Mrs. Thomas Gammie of Ponca City, Okla., and Mrs. Melville Muckelstone, Chicago, Ill. The one elected will succeed Mrs. A. C. Carlson, Willmar, Minn., present national auxiliary president.

TO CONTEST UTILITIES REGULATION

Newton D. Baker

Henry Stimson

A concerted attack will be made by the utility industry on the recently passed public utility holding company bill. The attack will be financed through the Edison Electric Institute. In addition to Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck, already retained as counsel, it is expected that John W. Davis (J. P. Morgan's lawyer) and Henry Stimson will be employed. This would comprise the highest-priced legal staff ever retained, it is believed. Baker was secretary of war under President Wilson. Beck, formerly a Republican congressman from Philadelphia, is a constitutional lawyer who has been mentioned for the Republican nomination for president. John W. Davis, considered the leading corporation lawyer in America, was a Democratic nominee for president. Stimson was secretary of state under President Hoover.
